

				Both letters include all 5 parts of a friendly letter, written neatly with complete paragraphs and
Letter to a friend/From a friend-Page 3	Five or more of the required elements are missing.	Three to four of the required elements are missing.	One to two of the required elements are missing.	sentences. Both letters are written from the correct point of view and include the problem or the solution with examples from the story. Letters are in envelopes.	—
Diary Entry-Page 4	The diary entry is missing 4 or more required elements.	The diary entry is missing 2-3 required elements.	The diary entry may not be neatly written from the MAIN CHARACTER'S PERSPECTIVE and may not include the main character's feelings about him/herself and how the character has physically and emotionally changed from the beginning of the story to the end. The diary entry may or may not include all 5 parts of a friendly letter.	The diary entry is neatly written from the MAIN CHARACTER'S PERSPECTIVE and includes the main character's feelings about him/herself and how the character has physically and emotionally changed from the beginning of the story to the end.	—
Page 5-Souvenirs and Mementos	Two to three objects are included and these objects may or may not reflect events in the story or important aspects of the character. Each object may or may not include an explanation describing its significance.	Four to five objects are included and these objects may or may not reflect events in the story or important aspects of the character. Each object may or may not include an explanation describing its significance.	All 6 objects may or may not reflect events in the story or important aspects of the character. Each object may or may not include an explanation describing its significance.	All 6 objects included reflect events in the story or important aspects of the character. Each object includes an explanation describing its significance.	—
				Total---->	—

Teacher Comments: